Making an Impact

At GFLEC, our passion for research is driven by the possibility of making an impact. For years, we have been working persistently toward the promotion of financial education in research, policy, and society. We are excited to share that Director Lusardi has been included by Forbes Italia in their list of 100 Successful Italian Women of 2019.

Additionally, we are proud to participate in a new initiative by the World Economic Forum in collaboration with AARP and the OECD. The initiative, Living, Learning & Earning Longer, aims to share existing resources and, where knowledge gaps exist, collaborate on new research to help employers build, support, and sustain multi-generational workforces.

Here at GFLEC, we aim to be the best incubator of financial literacy research and policy. We are dedicated to quality research that is results-oriented, evidence-based, and that will propel individuals toward greater financial well-being.
